President's Report

This month's report seems like it is full of achievements.

As expected HB schools totally dominated the NZ Secondary School Champs (even without Jack and Kate who both put in great performances at JWOC). From memory we won 4 out of 6 individual Champs titles and 4 second places and 4 out of 6 relay titles plus almost all the standard grades. Our schools brought home all the Premier and Overall Top School trophies. We probably contributed a third of the competitors as well which is a great effort considering it was held in Christchurch. Well done to all the students, coaches and helpers on your great results.

After this it was of no surprise to see 7 of our juniors were selected for the NZSS team to do battle with Australia. Good luck team.

Our own club focus lately has been on our Winter Score series. Thanks to all the setters and vetters who have given us a good workout each event. I was especially impressed by Grant and Colin's effort last weekend when they stepped in at fairly short notice to set the courses. Both are novice setters and did a great job.

Our schedule for events is set at the start of the year and there are always a few changes that need to be made as the year goes by. Lesley has the unenviable job of trying to match people with events which she does extremely well. It is great to see people fronting up so readily when asked to help out. Thanks everyone.

As I write this Ross is competing at WOC and doing really well – he has made two finals which is a great achievement in itself. There you go juniors – another goal to set yourselves!

Coming up we have three more OY's and our major event at Labour Weekend. Please support this event by entering and/or helping run it. There are plenty of jobs that need doing from putting up event centres to guarding controls in Havelock North where the sprint should be a great spectacle.

Well that's it for this time.

Labour Weekend is fast approaching...

Have you heard about the event the club is hosting at Labour weekend? If you haven't, then here's what's happening.

Over the weekend the club will be having 4 events, on our best maps. Hopefully, lots of people from outside HB will travel here to compete over the weekend and hopefully, lots of HB club members will enter as well. The events are open to everyone and there are 10 courses each day, red, orange, yellow & white – just like club events – so anyone can enter, experienced or not so experienced.

For big events like this, competitors have to enter beforehand, so maps can be printed and start times can be allocated. If you haven't done anything like this before, then have a go! It would be great to see lots of new HB members taking part.

Over the last few months a group of club members have been working away in the background – co-ordinating the event, drawing maps, planning courses and designing the event website.

Particular thanks go to Rob McDonald, who has done an excellent job getting the event organisation underway and David Fisher, who has spent many hours in front of the computer conquering html, java and other little puzzles, to produce the event website and the on-line entry system.

The events for the weekend are:

| Day | Event | Map | Planner | Controller |
|-----------|-----------------|------------------------|--------------------------------|--------------|
| Saturday | Long distance | The Slump | Hamish Goodwin | Ken Holst |
| Sunday am | Middle distance | Whanawhana | Geoff Morrison | Mark McKenna |
| Sunday pm | Sprint | Havelock North Village | Jack Vincent & Duncan Morrison | |
| Monday am | Long distance | Whanawhana | Chris Howell | Max McKenna |

Long distance events are like OY events, middle distance is shorter than this and the sprint event is like the summer series.

To find out more about the event, read the information & entry form in this magazine and have a look at the event website. If you have any questions or need help deciding which course to enter, then don't hesitate to contact me. Entries for the event close on October 8.

Central Districts & Wellington Orienteering Championships

Hawke's Bay October 20 – 22, 2007

Event 1 – Saturday 20th October: CDOA Long Distance Championship, The Slump – A level event

The map: Farmland, with a unique combination of lakes, knolls, depressions, rocks, scattered trees and smaller forested areas. The confusion of features is the result of the huge geological slump after which the map is named. This event will be the first on the map after a complete remapping. Last used for a major event in 1996.

Planner: Hamish Goodwin (HB)

Controller: Ken Holst (HB)

Estimated winning times: Based on a winning time for course 1 of 90mins

Start times: From 11:00 am Location: 30mins west of Napier or Hastings

Event 2 – Sunday 21st October: WOA Middle Distance Championship, Whanawhana – A level event

The map: This map is typical of Hawke's Bay's intricate farmland at its best. Not just any sort of farmland. "The Fort", a large hill at 300 metres elevation, dominates this spur/gully map, with extensive areas of runnable kanuka scrub, boulders, small cliffs, randomly slumped terrain and a great deal of intricate contour detail. The terrain varies from rocky areas with clean bush cover that require intense navigation, to free-running wide open country. Only used once, for Nationals 2005.

Planner: Geoff Morrison (HB)

Controller: Mark McKenna (RO)

Course lengths: EWT Course 1, 30 mins.

Start times: From midday Location: Near the Ngaruroro River, 45 mins west of Hastings

Event 3 – Sunday 21st October: Deco Dash, Havelock North Village

The map: Town centre map based on Havelock North. Includes the shopping precinct, light industrial zone and nearby parks. Only used once, for a club event in 2007.

Planner: Duncan Morrison & Jack Vincent (HB)

Course lengths: EWT 12-15mins

Start times: From 6:00 pm Location: Havelock North Township

Event 4 – Monday 22nd October: WOA Long Distance Championships, Whanawhana – A level event

The map: As event 2

Planner: Chris Howell (HB)

Controller: Max Kerrison (HB)

Course lengths: Based on a winning time for course 1 of 90mins

Start times: From 10:00 am Location: As event 2

Top 'O' Family

As part of the event we are offering a Top 'O' Family competition. The competition will be based on the results of the three best performing family members in any three of the events over the weekend. The scoring system has yet to be finalised but will probably be based on an OY system of 25 points for a win with a percentage of winning time used to calculate other scores.

All that is required to enter is to list qualifying family members in the appropriate section on the entry form. More than three family members can be entered but only the highest scoring three will count.

- For the purposes of this competition 'family' means any combination of parents, children, siblings or grandparents as long as they are nominated on the entry form.
- To be a counting family member you must be entered in an 'A', 'AS' or 'E' grade.

Off to World Schools in Scotland

Ten girls from Havelock North High School, most of them club members, will compete at the World Schools' Orienteering Champs in Edinburgh, Scotland from 21 to 27 April 2008.

The school applied to be chosen as the team which will represent New Zealand in the junior girls' (D2) and senior girls' (D1) grades. They received endorsement from NZOF and were nominated by the New Zealand Secondary School Sports Council. Each country may be represented by one school in a grade, although this will be the first time New Zealand will have been represented.

World Schools is run by the International Schools Federation (ISF) every two years, the 2006 champs having been held in Slovakia and 2004 in Belgium.

Part of the occasion will be a 'tourist fair' in which each delegation designs and builds their own display along the lines of 'why you should go on holiday in my country'.

The orienteers will do a model event to familiarise themselves with the terrain and learn how the competition will run, then compete in long and middle distance events as well as a 'friendship relay' for which runners from different countries will be mixed.

As part of their fundraising the girls are doing a fashion show in the school auditorium on Friday 12 October, where they will model new season lines from local fashion houses. The girls and their parents are coming up with new fundraising ideas all the time, so club members will get plenty of opportunities to support them.

Local television's Ross Holden is doing a piece on the girls to be shown on Channel 51 — look out for that.

It does not surprise me

from an uncle's prospective

Making two world championship finals at his first attempt is an outstanding achievement but in viewing the progress of Ross since the beginning, it does not surprise me. Since he first started orienteering as a 6 year old, coincidentally on the same day as me, I have always had great pleasure in following his astonishing rise. His head-shaking performances at times could be termed freakish and since he started, quickly has established himself as the 'jewel in the NZOF crown'.

One will never forget his first Katoa Po, running first leg, he was third in, being aged seven was incidental. But from that time on, his performances became more and more legendary. The fact that he was so tiny, even when he went to secondary school, he was probably 30kg's wringing wet, made him even more a cult figure.

On a summer North Island series, travelling down from the north in January, events were set up, but with only 3 courses available, all red. Ross ran the red short, he was 9 but turned 10 during the event. Not only did he run, but he won 2 or 3 times against all comers.

Jamie Stewart raised his arms at Piopio after winning the M16 long course and uttered "yes, I've just beaten an 11 year old by 11 seconds". But deep down, Jamie knew he was the man to beat, for he was waiting for him to come in, but also at that stage, Ross had already gained the respect of his fellow competitors.

At 11, he was named in the New Zealand team that went to Tasmania and was part of the team that won the M16 relay at the Australian Champs. This was also the first time that he came across his Australian equivalent Julian Dent.

How could one forget when at 16, he dismantled the JWOC team at the Nationals by 9 minutes on the long course or the astonishing effort of winning 4 NISS senior titles, his only blemish was in the third form where he ran third! Sure, he only won 2 NZSS titles, but he only attended 3, of which one he had a debilitating sickness, but still came third.

It was Ross who has been the catalyst in the HBOC winning 6 NZ long relay titles in the last 9 years. It hasn't been his fault that HB has not won a Katoa Po in the last 20 years.

It was unfortunate that a mystery virus hampered his plans to take the world by storm during the years he was eligible to run at JWOC. As a first year M18 he had his first taste of the world stage in Spain. It was a learning curve and the knowledge acquired was not able to be put to the test until his final year when he returned to Switzerland. Still not fully recovered, he ran 10th in the sprint, and his 5th in the qualifying for the middle was outstanding, though he was disappointed to mispunch in the final. The long course was a bit of an afterthought, and despite his low stamina levels at this stage, he still battled around to finish a creditable 51st.

So at 22, it was no surprise that he won his first national long course elite title, probably being the youngest to do so in a long time. It was the first long course title by a club member, though he was beaten to the first elite title by sister Amber when she won the sprint just 2 days previously. Interestingly enough, it was the sprint and middle he was looking to win, which he missed out on, and surprised himself with the victory.

So when he ran 7th in his qualifying and 37th in the final of the middle and finished 42nd in the final of the sprint, it didn't surprise me. He is now competing against the very best in the world and is not far away. The experience will be invaluable, for that is probably the greatest obstacle to him at this stage. Once he gains that, who knows, for whatever he does, it does not surprise me.

Dubbo — isn't that something you clean your boots with?

Dubbo is not a name to inspire instant recognition as a sports venue, especially one hosting a World Championship. For New Zealand orienteers, however, it provided a priceless first opportunity to field a full team of 12 at the 2007 Junior World Orienteering Champs 2007 (JWOC).

It also gave our better juniors had the chance to spend time practising on Australian granite maps over three or four years. Most took this opportunity, but sadly, at least two were unable to participate due to injury.

Regardless of that, New Zealand's team certainly opened the eyes of a number of European coaches and of great encouragement to the management were the comments of the coach of the successful Norwegian team who said he was impressed by the way the New Zealand team had gone about its preparation, and the results that had flowed through.

Most of the Europeans were amazed that our competitors had to pay their own way! Even the economically-challenged European countries appeared to receive some financial assistance from within the greater orienteering community.

What did we know about Dubbo? Not much, except it was in NSW, it had a zoo and was home to a great many aboriginals. We saw the zoo close up as the sprint took place there. Ask any of our many NZ supporters, Ruth or Val say, and they will let you know it cost around $40 NZ to go and watch their offspring run. More than the rugby at McLean Park!

We met some aborigines who performed at the opening ceremony where we also met several other dignitaries, including IOF officials and the Mayor who opened the event.

The terrain made complaints about the difficulty of mapping Maraetotara seem laughable – on a 1:15,000 scale there appeared to be more black than white – fly specks of all shapes and sizes. Except, of course, for the zoo, where other hazards lurked over the moat, or in some cases, in the moat.

After a week of living and dining with the other teams, I am sure our team has made many contacts, useful for their future careers in and out of the sport.

Most of the Kiwi team attended a Queensland Training Camp a week before the official training began for JWOC. This meant that when the entourage became a full-blown team, meeting in Sydney before sallying forth inland by train to Orange, management needed to ensure the group stayed mentally fresh.

Various training activities were set by Mark Lawson and myself, while team meetings were kept to a minimum. The Australian s left mid-week to go into retreat in the Blue Mountains, but I don't think it worked for them.

They were very helpful to us, however, as we shared in a couple of training exercises and they lent us one of their three physiotherapists from time to time. They also made good use of the exer-cycles, seen at rugby games these days for warm-ups, and warm downs.

The only major hiccup occurred when the team transferred to the JWOC competition accommodation in Dubbo, where we learned there were to be three to a room, but only two beds, a single and a double. The other teams, including the Aussies, accepted this and sleeping bags were the order of the day. By clever use of mattresses, bed bases and fold up stretcher beds, the New Zealander's managed to sleep comfortably, and singly, but with limited space.

Pity the Spanish team whose baggage arrived three days late, with two of the team not receiving theirs until the day before their return flight.

By and large, meals were good, transport to events good and weather passable in competition week, but bitterly cold for spectators over the last two days.

Training week in Orange had many days when the temperature stayed below 10°, with snow on Mt Canobillis when we arrived and sleety snow in Orange one night. One of the highlights for some was the abandonment of training due to an impassable wet paddock, so they saw a few circuits of Bathurst instead.

Our HB reps acquitted themselves well, showing us that the club is capable of launching members onto the world stage with the skills and attitude to succeed. 29 countries were represented.

Jack and Kate were in action almost immediately JWOC began, Jack starting at 9.01 and Kate 9.03 in the Sprint. Kate was 57th out of 90, beating four of the Aussies and Jack 84th out of 126. A highlight was Thomas Reynolds – 14th, 19 seconds away from a medal.

Teams get to select which section of the start list each runner will start. Jack and Kate were among the few Kiwis prepared to run early.

The long distance event followed, with the women covering 7.2km and 300m climb, the men 11.1km and 495m climb. Again, Jack ran well for 78th of 128 beating four Australians, and Kate had an excellent result at 49th, three minutes behind Lizzie Ingham and ahead of all of the Australians except Vanessa Round who was 6th.

Highlights were Greta Knarston's 16th place and the Australian podium finishes – Vanessa 6th and Simon Uppill 4th.

After a rest day the middle distance heats were held. Kate exceeded expectations by becoming the third Kiwi in the 'A' final, qualifying 17th in her heat, top 20 in each to go through. Jack missed by a minute and a half at 25th, with another sound performance.

Highlights today were Tineke Berthelsen breaking her drought with 2nd in Heat A and Lizzie 3rd in Heat C. Greta mp'd when lying 6th.

Next day were the finals and incredibly New Zealand had the three fastest times in the B final, headed by Greta who was unfortunately unofficial. That left Kate Rea 1st and Nicola Peat 2nd.

Jack was 17th in the 'B' final behind Sam McNally 13th and Riki Cambridge 15th, 15 seconds between them. Kate made an early mistake but held her own after that with a creditable 50th.

Highlights were Tineke's top 20 finish (20th) and the Girls' B results. Lowlights, Thomas having a good run but finding he had missed a control.

Finally, came the relay, which had two facets, one being overall placing, the other a rivalry with our Australian friends. We had a lot of early excitement here, too, with Thomas sticking with the lead group throughout – a super run – 6th at the changeover, just 10 seconds off the pace.

Meanwhile, Lizzie had the women into 14th, two minutes down, and Kate had the 'B' team in 19th, ahead of both Australian teams. In fact, both men's teams were also ahead of their Tasman rivals.

By the end of the second leg the NZ men had dropped to 16th, still just eight minutes from the leaders but just two minutes ahead of Australia, and Jack to run last. Good move, as Jack brought the team home in 18th, nearly five minutes in front of the Aussies.

Sadly, the girls faded after Tineke had lifted them to 12th (9th Country), with Greta having a seven minute error allowing Vanessa Round (Australia) past and into 11th, two minutes ahead of our 14th.

Apart from Thomas's run, a highlight was the sprint finish in the women's race, after over 100 minutes' racing neck and neck until a stumble crossing the creek 30 metres from the finish line saw Norway beat Sweden by less than a second.

Overall, five top 20 placings and 11 top 50 was excellent reward for New Zealand.

All that was left was the post event closing ceremony, banquet and party, though not necessarily in that order – not a great time for managers, or moteliers, when viewing the state of the rooms the next day.

It was certainly great to be part of a JWOC event, where the competition is tough and any error punished. Sure, the atmosphere of a European-based event was somewhat diluted, but our Under 21's had a chance to test themselves against the world's best.

NSW rocks . . . and other features

Hello fellow Hawke's Bay orienteers. Here is a taste of what JWOC was like for me this year.

As I left the HB secondary school relays, I was ready to start my three week adventure. Travelling up to Auckland in a big bus by myself was definitely an experience as I have never done anything like this before, but... there was more to come! As I stayed the night in Auckland I was getting more and more excited whilst waiting for my flight to Brisbane. I got to the airport and was trying to remember all the things I was told to do before I got on my huge Emirates plane. As I boarded, I was surprised by all the fancy gadgets. TV screens on the back of every seat and really good service and not to mention the pretty good in flight meals! (Recommend this airline) When I landed in Brisbane, went through customs yadda yadda... I saw a team member, Tineke Berthelsen waiting for me. As we caught up and waited for team coach Mark Lawson to pick us up, we couldn't believe we were finally here! The long drive to Warwick, a town 3hrs out of Brisbane consisted of a small bite to eat and a long long sleep! We arrived at our camp in Warwick and unloaded into a room where most of the team was there to greet us. We got warned about the horrible weather, we didn't think much about it. Come on, it can't be that bad, it's Australia, it's never cold there, right? The next morning I woke up freeeeeeezing!! I see. In Queensland we got to some awesome training that really got us into the orienteering mood before the next two weeks of hard training and competing. It was a bit strange having people staring at us in the Warwick town park as funny dressed sprinting runners hoon past with pieces of paper in their hands looking for small pieces of toilet paper. When we got back to the camp one of the days, we arrived to find vaseline on our toilet seats, our light bulbs gone and our shower curtains had disappeared! We thought it had to be the Canadians as they were the only other foreign teams staying at our camp. It was payback time! Over the week in Brisbane we managed to get the Canadians back, scored some awesome training and made it to the local newspaper of Warwick. Yay! As we packed up with every seat full and our entire luggage and Tom's bike (note: I was made to sit in the smallest seat there was) we headed back to Brisbane airport. Whilst at the airport we had our team split up into two different flights. Since I was on the second flight we had a long time to wait. We played hackey sack in the middle of the international airport and watched a few movies, oh and not to mention a few Borat stunts done by Greta Knarston on the escalator.

As we arrived in Sydney it felt even more realistic that we were at JWOC. Leaving on the train with Mark and finally meeting up with Dad we left for a place called Orange. We arrived waiting for the rest of the team to catch up. Allocating rooms and unloading for an extra week of training, we then decided to catch up with the foreigners! It was cool to see all the different countries that we were going to compete against. After days of settling in and heaps of injuries from the NZ team we got used to the tricky Australian terrain. Rocks, rocks and more rocks became very familiar to us, and we even learnt how to read rocks in complex terrain. This was very tricky and not to mention the slippery bare rock we had to interpret as well. After the days of training we got to mingle with the other teams pretty well. We became close friends with teams such as Lithuania, Ireland, Belgium, Australia and many other countries. We had an awesome team to bond with and we all got along really well. Whilst in Orange we gave Jack an awesome haircut to get rid of the slightly shaggy mop. Andrew took most the credit for that one. A lot of shopping was accomplished in Orange, not to mention our extraordinary outfits for the huge party at the end of JWOC. One of the days we were training, I decided to go for a walk because of a small calf injury that was healing. Whilst walking I managed to come across a hugely long black snake that scared me so much, I think I jumped back three metres or so. Despite this frightful event we managed to have a successful time in Orange, both social and training wise. We also managed to get on the Orange local television news as well.

On one of our last day in Orange we decided (5 of us girls, Ricky and Andrew) to go training at a map called Khalis Rocks. When we got there it was pouring down and we could only get up to where we needed to go by travelling sideways up the hills. After a long time of trying to get up the hill we decided to call it quits. We thought it would be funny watching all the Norwegians and Russians trying to get up in their Previa vans. As we had given up on the idea of training at that map we then headed down to do a bit of racing on the Bathurst track and do some more shopping. When we arrived back to Orange to find the rest watching movies and eating pizza, some of us were keen to get some speed work in as this would be one of our last chances to before JWOC started. Whilst running we felt as if we were going to freeze to death from the bulleting rain and freezing wind chill. Later as we had our showers etc. we took a look outside to see that it was snowing! SNOWING! We couldn't believe it. Snow in Oz and just a few days before JWOC.

Travelling on our bus to (finally) Dubbo, our number one destination, we played a game called mafia with the Lithuanians which was quite interesting. When we arrived in Dubbo we arrived at a nice motel. Soon after unloading we were told that we had to share beds. Well... some of us were not happy about that. A world class event and we had to share? We managed to sort out so everybody had a bed in the end which made a few grumpy bums stress a little bit. The next day at Dubbo was the model event, to get the hang of the maps and terrain we were going to be running on. Oh and Jack also had a close call with some cars and a souvenir boomerang. The opening ceremony then followed that afternoon later. A walk through the town of Dubbo in our tracksuits and then an opening by the mayor and some...well... interesting aborigines. After having a decent feed and a good night's sleep it was finally the day of our first day at JWOC.

DAY 1: Nerves were eating me up inside and I didn't feel that hungry because of the pressure I was putting on myself. When we got to Dubbo zoo (where the sprint was held) I seemed to be getting more and more nervous. As I warmed up and finally got into the 6min silent waiting start I was ready to race. Walking through a giant maze to get to the final map table was intense. 3-2-1-BEEP. I was off and spectators were yelling at me. I caught the Japan girl at number one. Poor girl. After a challenging race and a few mistakes I finished in an alright time. Watching the award ceremony was so inspiring. Flags and national anthems were played, as the top 6 from each race stood very proud. Awesome results were achieved by the team and we managed to have a look at the crazy animals as we left the zoo.

DAY 2: Getting up at extremely early hours was what we had to do everyday. We set out on our allocated buses to get to the long distance event. We had a big walk (in my jandals) to get to our quarantined area. We got given a small section of map that we were allowed to warm up on and have a look at the terrain we were about to compete on. The same silent start was applied again and another big maze was set up to get out of sight from other competitors. This race was very long. We had a few spectator controls which were really motivating with our supporters there. As I raced around the course with a few mistakes here and there and tried to hang on to the Swedes and the other countries I managed to get a 49th placing. I was very pleased with my result as I was 3rd NZer and I beat all Ozzies except Vanessa Round with a 6th place for a podium finish. This was a pretty challenging but awesome racing day. Again the ceremony was done and it was cool to see two Australians up there in the world in the top six.

DAY 3: Another day in the Dubbo paper. We managed to be the highlight of everybody's news! Go NZ! Finally, a rest day. This consisted of sleep, TV, sleep, shopping, sleep and doing our top ten lists, eating and more sleeping. If you don't know what the top ten lists are, it is where all the team's guys and girls pick a top 10 order of the opposite sex. As we all confirmed our orders, we decorated them and stuck them up, along with all the other teams. A few of our NZers made a few of the foreigners' lists. Congrats to Nicola, Tom (awesome effort) and Ricky.

DAY 4: As I was in the first block for the 3rd time I had to get up and catch the early bus again to go to the middle qualification. As we had the usual procedure of warming up and getting psyched. I set out on my course. It was a pretty good run, except a big error on number one (always a bad one to muck up) and a little one part way through. In the end it was good enough to make an A-final along with Lizzie, Tineke and Tom.

DAY 5: Middle Final! I was pretty nervous as this was a big deal for me to even make the A-final. Again the procedure was strict and I managed to finish but with a not so very good time. Very many mistakes were made on this day. The ceremony was a presentation to the top 6 — the same ones seemed to be up there most days. These people were machines! I do not know how they did it.

DAY 6: It was time for the relay. I was first for NZs 2nd team and ready to get us into a good position. I had a great start and wasn't too far behind the pack. When I lost a few minutes on one control, it sent me back and I lost a few places. As I finished I tagged onto my 2nd team member, Kate Rea. Our team did not end up doing that well but we managed to finish, which was all that counted. The final finish for the women was a sprint between Norway and Sweden; it was so exciting to watch. The ceremony was big! Six times three people were on the podium. The winners were given champagne and it was a real motivating scene. I was wishing that one day I could be up on that podium. After swapping team shirts with the other countries, it was time to watch the coaches' race which was an experience while we celebrated with some champagne. PARTY! Now was time to celebrate the huge achievement of all the competitors who were competing over the week. Dressing up in our "Grandpa and gold-digger" outfits which were what we partied in for the long night.

The next few days were spent doing Oz champs and flying back to NZ, home.

I was sad to leave JWOC as it was such an experience for me, and seeing I was the reserve for the team and having to go with the team instead of my sister, which was devastating but exciting for me, I definitely wanted to go next year. As this was one of the best times in my life, I would just like to say that I recommend anyone who is training hard to trial for JWOC if you get the chance. Meeting new people, learning new experiences and becoming really motivated was what I liked about JWOC. Thanks for reading my huge report from JWOC — it was just filled with memories.

If anyone wants to know more about JWOC or wants to see pictures, or maps just approach me at orienteering and I will be happy to talk to you about it. It was so cool and I will never ever forget it. Cheers guys and thanks for all the support and funds the club and supporters have helped me with. Also a quick note, if anyone is willing to help me find sponsorship for next year in Sweden I will be so grateful if you could get me some contacts. Thanks again.

COURSE SETTING CORNER with Alan Berry

The colour coded courses are intended to provide developing orienteers with a series of stepping stones that will allow them to succeed in their sport, while at the same time developing their orienteering skills.

A lot of thought went into the specifications for each of the colour coded courses. You will find them in the Preview and also on the NZOF website, included in the Rules at /technical. We shall have a look at these specifications over the next few issues

White course

The white course is sometimes the tail that wags the dog. If a start/finish area is not suitable for a white course, it is not suitable for the event.

The course must follow drawn linear features, such as tracks, fences, streams, distinct vegetation boundaries – that sort of thing. A control must be placed at every decision point, such as where there is a fork in the track, a track or fence junction or a change in the type of linear feature. All control markers must be visible from the approach side but need not be visible from the previous control. Where the linear feature is a bit complicated though, it will provide reassurance if you do make the control visible from the previous one.

It is OK to make the course follow a tape from one linear feature to another. Don't hesitate to use tapes as they can be very useful in helping to create more interesting courses. You must have a control at the beginning and end of the tape. If the start triangle is not on a linear feature you must run a tape from the triangle to the linear feature and put a control where they meet. No route choice is offered and doglegs are allowed. Try to put the control flag just a little in the direction of where the course is heading. At a crossroads for example, put the control two metres along the track that they have to follow next. The control features themselves do not necessarily have to be linear features. A tree growing hard against a fence, or a rock hard against a track, or a hilltop with the fence going right over the top – these are all acceptable and make the course a bit more interesting.

Control circles (all courses)

Some features on maps, such as ponds, hilltops and patches of bush, are drawn to scale. Others such as trees and knolls are just symbols and are drawn much bigger than the actual feature. For example, a single tree is drawn with a circle 12 metres across on the ground, even if it is just a poplar tree. If you are drawing the control circle on a tree on your master map, make the centre of the control circle in the middle of the tree symbol. Then describe where the control is – west side or wherever. If the control is on the eastern edge of a pond, put the centre of your circle exactly there – on the eastern edge of the pond on the map.

Volunteer of the Month July — Gail Gregory

Volunteer of the Month for July is supermum Gail Gregory. Reaching into the washing basket was easy for setting up a photo as there is plenty of orienteering gear to be washed. Daughters Chloe and Olivia, son Harrison and husband Gary are all active in the club and Gail trots round yellow courses herself these says.

Gail has been quick to put her hand up to help on trips with the Havelock North High School team, the latest being a five-day trek to Christchurch for nationals. For this, Gail became a necessary driver when Geoff attended a funeral before joining the team in Christchurch. Gail handled this task with aplomb, and didn't get a speeding ticket or offence notice for crossing the centre line, unlike another driver in the convoy. Gail must really enjoy the company of these young people as she has now done three of these trips with the team. In their turn, the Havelock kids are very comfortable with her and certainly appreciate her coming away with them. Thanks, Gail.

How long have you been orienteering?

Since the girls were at intermediate.

How did you get involved in orienteering?

I knew Robyn and Ross Berry who used to do it and sounded so enthusiastic. I was really envious and thinking, this sounds really good. I first went to watch the school champs when Chloe was in the Havelock North Intermediate team. Maybe even earlier, I remember on our trips to Auckland we'd give Chloe the map — she was such a good navigator.

What do you remember about your first event?

I took Harrison to Akina. And I couldn't find the start. We all started going as a family. The girls would say, come on dad, you don't do much with us. We'll pack a lunch. Now Gary hates missing it.

What course do you usually run?

The yellow. I haven't progressed past that. I might go to the junior camp.

What do you enjoy about orienteering?

I am very proud to think I can find my way round and find my way back. Timewise isn't too big a thing. The only time I look at my watch is in a score event. What I enjoy? THE SCENERY and the lovely down-to-earth people. You can go along and do your thing and not worry about anyone else. There is no pressure.

If we met you during the week, what would you be doing / what's your job?

I mainly work from home doing beauty therapy. And at the moment I'm looking at fundraising. I go to yoga classes. And you might see me meeting Gary for coffee once a week — it's our chance to get things organised.

Volunteer of the Month

August — Paul Steeds

Paul Steeds is the club's Mapping Liaison.

He calls meetings of the mapping group and reports on the group's work to the club's committee.

Paul says his claim to fame as a fieldworker is having done "15% of Rotoma".

How long have you been involved with orienteering?

I started in 1998.

How did you get involved with orienteering?

Stuart had been on at me for 20 odd years when I was working with him at Aerial Mapping. You do things at a time of life when you're ready, I suppose. It's a regret I didn't start earlier.

What do you remember about your first event?

It wasn't very auspicious. It wasn't memorable. I started on an orange at Mangarara. I was 68.

What courses do you usually run?

Red short — watching this tide of young people coming up through yellow and orange and moving on.

What do you enjoy about orienteering?

Getting out on farms and forest you don't have a chance to any other time. The contact with mother earth — the very feminine hill shapes — it produces after all. The healthy, happy people you see in all those age groups — they're lovely people.

If we met you during the week, what would you be doing?

You just saw me chopping the wood. Talking to 'my boys', the eleven weaner steers. We have four and a half hectares — eleven acres — a retirement sort of thing.

Eye in the sky By the magpie

- * Our poor President offered to drive one of the Havelock North High School vans to Christchurch for the NZSS champs. Since he has returned, the owners of the hire firm, Lyn and Mike Helliwell, have received much mail from the NZ Police concerning the conduct of the driver on the trip. They handed it on to hirer Steve Armon, including a photo of the van and driver, with a threatening note that if the police were not informed of the driver Steve would face a $10,000 fine! The fact that the van had his driver's wheels just one tyre width over the white line made this note seem rather excessive, but nonetheless, the threat existed. The magpie himself had to reflect on some of his driving tendencies. His speeding fine, well that happens, but this other item was a blatant form of revenue gathering. Unfortunately, it seems our Prime Minister can race at over 160km an hour through towns in the South Island on the way to a rugby match while our President can't put his tyres over the white line going to orienteering.
- * Neville Smith won the HB/PB road running champs, running 10km in 32 minutes. Once he can get up to speed in orienteering he will be devastating.
- * Bluff Hill always causes a bit of angst for the low handicappers in the score series and this one was no different. Though Stewart Hyslop took to the streets on his bike. Magpie thinks if he had gone near some of the low handicappers there would have been a possibility his bike would've been hi-jacked, when one considers how desperately late some of them were. It would've been fun seeing Stewart biking down some of the steps. Interestingly enough he returned with his bike at Pukeora Hill, though that would've been a different kettle of fish!
- * The electric fences at Pukeora Hill were on as Peter Watson testified. He crawled under one but stood up too soon and got a welt on the backside. Bit like 'Tom Brown's schooldays'.
- * Steve Armon and the Havelock High girls had a bonus when they went to the NZSS champs. They attended the netball test versus Jamaica in Christchurch. Not only that, several managed autographs from some of the All Blacks who were attending, one of which was Richie McCaw. Elzine Braasch was also in her element, chatting in Afrikaans to the Springboks sitting behind her. The All Black test was on the Saturday, which was a bonus for some, with both the Harkers and the Eames attending.
- * The HB chess championships are building to a climax with players working through the round robin. Stewart Hyslop, Alan Berry and David Smith are all in the draw and battling each other as well as the other opponents. Apparently Dave got the better of Stewart the other day.
- * The Barrett household is being stretched at the moment with Aari contracted to a mountain biking team, Jay playing age-group rugby for Hawke's Bay and Cam in the HB U11 hockey side.

Contours

ORANGE courses will require the ability to read simple common contour patterns: hills, valleys, ridges etc. RED courses will involve interpreting more detailed contour feature patterns. Readily recognisable contour 'catching features' before or behind control sites and contour feature handrails are likely to be present.

Contours on a map mark places of equal height and form patterns which reveal land shape in some detail. A vertical interval of 5 metres means that each contour is drawn 5 metres above the next lower one.

Melting ice on the island below has caused the sea level to rise in a series of steps. Each succeeding coastline is marked one above another. A bird's eye view of the series of coastlines would be as shown in the second illustration: a contour map.

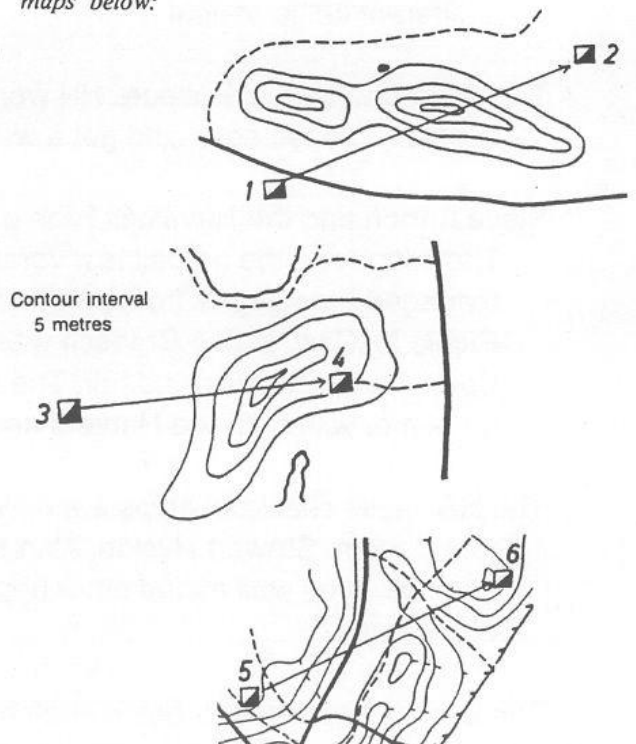

Can you match the contour pattern with the illustration?

Route Choice and Attack Points

Route choice usually revolves around deciding upon a readily recognisable attack point quite close to the control.

Identify attack points and several possible routes on the 'maps' below:

Te Mata Park Score Event — Report

This was my first score event and only my second attempt at setting an orienteering course. How hard could it be? Just chuck 27 controls around the Te Mata Park map, download Condes and do it all on the computer. No worries! First hitch – Condes doesn't work on MAC. Didn't tell Jo (her indoors) who is always telling me how useless MACs are (they look cool though). "Don't forget the white course" reminded my vetter, Pamela Morrison.

Easy! Poppy (the dog) and I headed to Te Mata Peak to set the white course and reconnoitre some good control sites for the score. I spent the whole afternoon trying to sort out a white course, never got to the score controls, it rained and then Pamela vetoed my course because it crossed the road. She reckoned we need novice orienteers to grow into senior club members, not get cleaned up by boy racers on the Te Mata Peak road. Good call, Pamela.

I ended up visiting the Peak four times before I thought I had enough good control sites and a white course. Poppy loved it! It was difficult to avoid previously used control sites and there were several changes to the map due to track work and some tree felling. I did manage not to use the trig near the summit.

Finally, I took a map with 35 possible control sites on it, to Pamela's. I had a good idea of the course that I wanted to set, but soon realised that I had made it too easy. Pamela's input was fantastic. She is very devious! Once again, I learned a lot from my vetter and we ended up with a great course. The weather was crappy leading up to the event. Poppy and I got soaked several times, but we got a good turnout on Sunday. There were lots of spills and trills with some very muddy runners at the finish. Only one runner collected all the controls within the hour, which I took to mean Pamela's input had made the course nasty enough. Well done, Jack Vincent.

Thanks to all who helped on the day:

- Geoff, Pamela and Sean Morrison for setting up, running things and collecting controls
- Jo Morris and Nic Harty for manning (staffing!) the caravan
- Mark Irwin for control collection and anyone I've forgotten
- And Poppy for keeping me company.

Report on Pukeora Score Event

As a relative newcomer to orienteering and a complete virgin at setting a course, it was more than a little daunting to receive a phone call from Hamish one dark winter's night suggesting I might like to fill in for a late withdrawal from the designated Pukeora setter. Without the presence of mind to think of a suitable excuse, I was on the hook. I now understand why the original setter withdrew.

It's a little like swimming under water at night – you know where you went in, but have no idea of what direction you should be heading in or where you might come up for air. So after discovering Condes and downloading said software along with the rather impressive list of “things to do”, it was time to relax. Bad mistake. A week and a half out from the event and panic began to set in. Fortunately Pamela Morrison is an old hand at this and volunteered to come and walk me through the process, with vetter Colin Jones providing the necessary emotional back up and welcome positive statements such as “do you think that is such a good idea...?” However, within a couple of hours (and a couple of glasses of Chardonnay) we had it pretty much nailed. A liberal sprinkling of control points and the random assignment of values is relatively easy with a score event. How anybody organises the multiple course events is beyond me.

A pleasant Sunday outing in the pouring rain and a howling southerly to check out the course the weekend prior to the event was going OK until I lost my pencil after only four control sites. So it became a test of physical stamina in the face of potential hypothermia as well as a short term memory test that I struggle with at the best of times these days. I have to admit that I didn't actually make it to all of the sites, although I'm sure many of you will have figured that out on the day.

The Saturday before the event was a test of my sales skills in getting the rest of the family to help with putting out controls. All went very well and Colin impressed me greatly by doing all the cliff work and the long distance placements on the flats in about half the time I would have taken.

The day of the event was great. Perfect weather, lots of competitors, everything running like clockwork (after some hurried white course marking just before kickoff) and some pretty good times. The young guns continue to amaze me with their times, but one or two of the oldies just embarrass me with theirs – how do they do it?.

All in all it was a great learning experience. Thanks to those who set up and maintained the caravan (it really does make life simple), Pamela Morrison for her guidance with the technical side, Colin Jones for his help from start to finish, Sue, Cam and Elouise for their help in setting up and cleaning up, those who helped bring in controls, and most importantly, those who competed and gave us feedback to learn from. I'll try to resist hiding controls in the blackberry in the future.
